ALLIES BEND BACK NAZI WESTWALL

STIFF BATTLE UNDER WAY IN SOUTH MANILA

YANKS MOPPING UP REMNANTS OF JAP GARRISON

Manila, Saturday, Feb. 10 (AP)—Fierce fighting is in progress in South Manila, where the 37th and 11th Airborn Divisions are mopping up the remains of Manila's defending garrison, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

"The fighting is of the fiercest," MacArthur said in his Saturday communique.

To the south, two Japanese counterattacks near Tagaytay, where the 11th airborne paratroopers landed to begin their lightning drive into South Manila, were "bloodily repulsed."

In bitter fighting on Bataan, 38th division troops reached the town of Moron in a 10-mile advance from the captured Olongapo naval base on Subic Bay.

Dock Area Is Goal

Sixth Division Yanks secured crossings on the upper Pampanga river at Rizal and Bongabon in clearing the enemy from the upper section of the central Luzon plain.

American warplanes made widespread raids, sweeping the China coast and bombing Formosa again. Many fires and explosions were set off at the Heito airdrome on Formosa.

MacArthur said the Manila action was particularly fierce.

"The 37th and 11th Divisions are engaged in house to house and street combat," he reported.

The 11th Airborne Yanks were last reported in the vicinity of Nichols airfield, on the south fringe of the Philippine capital. Prime objective of the 37th Division, which crossed the Pasig river in amphibious tanks Thursday, was the South Manila dock area.

Fires set by enemy demolition squads still smoldered throughout the city. Gaunt steel or concrete skeletons of buildings grimly testified to the enemy's persistence in destroying what he could not hold.

Worst Fires Over

New fires flared occasionally in the southern sector, where Japanese torch squads still were at work, but it was believed the worst was over. Enemy resistance weakened.

(Tokyo radio said Friday that the main Japanese forces had been withdrawn, leaving behind only enough troops "to maintain peace and order.")

The 37th doughboys had completed their work in the northern part of the city and crosesd the Pasig river near Malacanan palace. To their right was the Intramuros section, flanked by the largest docks in Manila's scenic harbor. Just south of the docks stands the Manila hotel, one of the most widely known in the Orient, which is believed to have escaped destruction.

While the mopping up continued in Manila, the Sixth and 25th Divisions of the First Corps of Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth army scored new advances in the area about 50 miles north of the capital. Capture there of Munoz, Rizal and Lupao virtually secured the eastern flank of the Luzon plains area. Sharp fighting had been reported for several days, resulting in "very heavy" Japanese losses in personnel, guns and armor, said Friday's communique.

Dewey Building Up For 1948 Election, Capitol GOP Hears

BY JACK BELL

Washington, Feb. 9 (AP)— Capitol Republicans concluded today that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is busting his suspenders to run for president again.

That was the consensus that grew out of Dewey's first post-campaign speech here last night and subsequent hotel room conferences he held with party leaders.

Some of those who talked with the New York governor said they came away with the idea that Dewey is concentrating most of his efforts now on cleaning up the party machinery in New York state in preparation for a race for reelection as governor in 1946. He lost New York in the November presidential contest partly because of defections in the ordinarily strong GOP upstate sector.

If he wins reelection as governor, most politicians here think Dewey will be in there pitching for the 1948 presidential nomination. He will be backed then by experience gained in the last campaign.

Some of that experience already has cropped out in his dealings with members of congress.

Democrats Unimpressed

For instance, he has told Republican senators and house members that he doesn't intend to attempt to dictate the party's policies in congress. He tried tentatively to offer a generalized program at a conference earlier, but quickly tossed it overboard when he felt the temper of the meeting.

Dewey also has assured legislators that he doesn't plan to make a lot of speeches, but will talk once in a while on major questions. He explained that he feels he has a difficult role to fill as titular head of the party.

The New York governor's speech here last night produced conflicting reactions among the GOP congressmen and senators, who with their wives, made up the major share of the audience.

The New York governor had done very well with a difficult assignment, said Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich). He pointed out that Dewey was talking Republican policy matters to congressmen who would resent his telling him how to run their business.

Democrats made out as if they were vastly unimpressed by the whole business. Senator George (D-Ga) thought the speech "sounded like a college declamation." Senator Tydings (D-Md) felt it lacked "oomph."

REICH COLLAPSE COMING NEARER

Big Three Makes Plans To Occupy Germany At Moment's Notice

BY JOHN A. PARRIS, JR.

London, Feb. 9 (AP) — The big three, realizing the possibility of a sudden collapse of military and civilian resistance in huge areas of Germany under pressure of the joint Allied offensive, are believed whipping plans into shape for occupying the Reich at a moment's notice.

Well-informed quarters here suggested today that President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin possibly are preparing two occupation plans, under the first of which specialized forces are being alerted now for emergency duty. The second plan would provide forces for long-term assignment.

There are indications that specialized troops already are being concentrated on the fringes of Germany to take over quickly when all or part of the country collapses. This force includes civil affairs experts and "teams" of the United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration.

With Nazi military forces being withdrawn to the south and southeast, British officials said northern Germany might collapse at any time. They based this belief on reports from inside the Reich that many sections of northern Germany already are showing signs of progressive decay.

Fall On Ice Fatal To Detroit Official

Born in Middletown, Ohio, Marshall was a graduate of the University of Michigan in the class of 1893.

SOLDIERS LEARN JAPANESE TALK

University Of Michigan Revealed As Center Of Instruction

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 9 (AP)—First official announcement that the University of Michigan has been an army center for Japanese language instruction for two years came today from army intelligence officers.

A partial lifting of censorship, which has withheld the information for security reasons until now, revealed that two types of Japanese teaching have been carried on at the university. These include the army specialized training program, terminated last September, and a more intensified course taken by a group designated as Company A of the 3651st Army unit.

Dr. Joseph Yamigawa, a Japanese-American and assistant professor of Japanese at the university, is directing the courses now in progress, and his staff is comprised of a group of Japanese-Americans. The men are supervised by their commandant, Capt. Stanley I. Fisher.

An intensive study of both written and spoken Japanese as well as culture and customs of Japan is included in the course taken by Company A. After completion of the course here they will be sent elsewhere for two more year's specialized work.

The ASTP course, graduating its first class in September, emphasized spoken Japanese and aimed to give fluency in the language.

The men in Company A are specially selected and have intelligence quotients in the upper one percent of the army.

Lt. Gen. Wainwright, Jap War Prisoner, Sent To Manchukuo

Washington, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Japanese shifted 177 American prisoners of war, including Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, from a prison camp on Formosa to Manchukuo, the war department reported today.

Wainwright, who became commander in the Philippines after General MacArthur left for Australia early in 1942, was taken prisoner by the Japanese after the surrender of Corregidor on May 6, 1942. Mrs. Wainwright lives in Skaneateles, N. Y.

The transfer to Manchukuo, which may have been a reflection of Japanese fear of an invasion of Formosa, was completed in November, the war department has been advised. The prisoners were moved from a camp at Taiwan on Formosa to Hoten Camp at Mukden in Manchukuo.

The group included 17 generals besides Wainwright, 119 army colonels, six navy captains and 34 enlisted men.

Defense Of Berlin Brings On Dispute

Stockholm, Feb. 9 (AP)—Aftontidningen said today a rumor was circulating in Copenhagen, Denmark, that German generals had refused to defend Berlin in accordance with orders already issued.

REDS WITHIN 29 MILES OF BERLIN'S PORT

PRUSSIAN HARBOR CITY OF ELBING SURROUNDED

BY W. W. HERCHER

London, Saturday, Feb. 10 (AP)—The Red army swept to within 29 miles of Berlin's Baltic port of Stettin yesterday in its swift drive to seal off all northeastern Germany, and the enemy announced that a new "gigantic" Soviet southern offensive had deeply outflanked Breslau by rolling 35 miles west of that Silesian capital.

On the Berlin front the Russians were said by the Germans to have crossed the Oder and cut direct north-south communications between Kuestrin, Frankfurt and Fuerstenberg at points within 35 miles of imperilled Berlin. These three fortresses are Berlin's major shields and the Russians were trying to encircle them.

Spearheads Reach Baltic

German broadcasts said that several Russian armies had been hurled into the swelling Silesian drive that sent Soviet spearheads to the edge of Liegnitz, big transit center and manufacturing city of 76,000 astride the direct Berlin-Breslau communication lines.

In East Prussia the Russians drove new spearheads to the Baltic coast and surrounded the harbor city of Elbing, between Koenigsberg and Danzig territory, thus dimming further the escape possibilities of the remnants of 200,000 to 250,000 Germans originally trapped in a pocket below Koenigsberg.

While the Germans said the heaviest fighting on the eastern front was in Pomerania and Silesia, they also gave further details of the grueling struggle along the Oder due east of the capital.

South of Frankfurt other Soviet units which recently crossed the river were said to have cut lines between there and Fuerstenberg. The Russians also were fighting in the outskirts of Frankfurt's eastern suburb of Damm after whittling down the slender Nazi holdings on the east bank.

Germans Desperate

One German broadcast also told of a new Soviet penetration to the Oder opposite Schwedt, 36 miles northwest of besieged Kuestrin, and said the Russians apparently intended to try to cross the Oder in that area 45 miles northeast of Berlin.

Moscow dispatches said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army was laying down one of the heaviest artillery barrages of the war on German lines between the Oder and Berlin. The Soviet communique, however, did not mention this sector where the Germans say the Russians have multiple bridgeheads across the river 30 to 43 miles from the capital.

Enemy broadcasts said a terrific battle raged immediately west of Kuestrin, where the Germans were fighting desperately to keep the Russians from encircling that stronghold 16 miles north of Frankfurt. Counterattacks thus far have kept open a corridor to Kuestrin, Berlin said.

Attacking on a 30-mile front in Pomerania, northeast of Berlin, the Russians rolled within ten miles southeast of Stargard, big communications center on the Stettin-Danzig railway and highway, with the capture of Brallentin, 29 miles from Stettin.

The Russians gained up to 11

Big Events Due In Nazi Capital Today, Swiss Say

London, Feb. 9 (AP)—A Berlin dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Neue Zuericher Zeitung tonight suggested that important developments were impending in the Nazi capital.

The wireless dispatch, intercepted by London monitors, described chaotic conditions in Berlin and then said "nothing seems to be certain. Maybe the big change, which will overthrow everything and create completely new conditions, will happen tomorrow."

Blizzard Kills 18 In New England; Loss In Millions

Boston, Feb. 9 (AP) — With a death toll of 18 and damage mounting into the millions, New England tonight was digging itself out of its worst blizzard since the Valentine's Day storm of 1940.

A record fall of snow, ranging up to 17 inches in Boston, clamped shut stores and schools and left most war plants limping on sparse manpower.

Transportation, virtually paralyzed for 24 hours, was wheezing along in low gear. Highways were flecked with stalled automobiles, abandoned by their owners. Soldiers answered a railroad appeal to shovel out switches. Thousands of commuters trekked wearily homeward after spending last night in police stations, railroad terminals and hotel lobbies.

The intensity of the blizzard set a record in Boston where seven inches of snow fell between 8:30 p. m. and 2:30 a. m.

Thousands of workers, after struggling through drifts to reach railroad stations, car and bus stops, trudged homeward again upon finding service stalled. War plants were the hardest hit, and big department stores left their doors closed when they realized employes could not get into the city.

A piercing gale added to the discomfort and piled up six-foot high drifts on many roads.

Three fishing draggers, each valued at $70,000, were pulled from their moorings in Gloucester. One sank; a second was dashed against a breakwater; the third was swept out to sea. As far as was known none was aboard the vessels.

An already acute fuel shortage became more severe with the tying up of rail traffic and a virtual complete halt of deliveries in some sections. Hundreds of homes dependent on electric power for operation of fuel oil burners had neither heat nor light for hours. On Cape Cod telephone service was badly crippled by fallen lines.

BOMBERS MET BY JET PLANES

New Messerschmitts Fly Rings Around U. S. Raiding Party

BY HOWARD COWAN

London, Feb. 9. (AP)—A mighty force of 1,300 American heavy bombers—guarded by almost 900 fighters—faced the greatest challenge of German jet planes today and escaped with a loss of 19 bombers and three fighters.

The Germans, using new tactics to forestall the American aerial blows, sent up jet-propelled Messerschmitt 262s which flashed in and out of the bomber formations, literally flying rings around the heavy craft.

Baffled gunners aboard the Flying Fortresses and Liberators failed to shoot down any of these attackers, flying at a speed of ten miles a minute, but escorting Mustang pilots knocked down five of the jets.

Eighteen ordinary-type Messerschmitt and Focke Wulf fighters also were blasted from the sky and 41 German planes were destroyed on the ground.

Effectiveness of the new German procedure was not indicated, but one witness told of a Flying Fortress crippled and forced to hide in clouds after a 15-minute attack by the "jetties" had left the fortress gunners dizzy.

Gen. Ralph Royce Weds In Detroit; Met Girl In Cairo

Detroit, Feb. 9. (AP)—Major General Ralph Royce, formerly commanding general of the Army Air Forces First Tactical Provisional Air Force in France and at one time commandant at Selfridge Field, and Miss Agnes Berges, of New York City, were married this evening at a quiet ceremony in a Detroit hotel. General Royce is a native of Marquette.

Chaplain Paul Haggleman of Selfridge Field performed the ceremony. The bride, who wore a street-length gray dress with a corsage of white orchids, met General Royce during the 18 months she spent as a Red Cross worker in Cairo, Egypt.

General Royce holds the distinguished flying cross awarded in April, 1943, for "extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flights in the Southwest Pacific area during 1942" and the croix de guerre, for bravery during World War I.

A 1914 graduate of West Point, Gen. Royce served as commandant at Selfridge Field from 1934 to 1941. He later went overseas and became commanding general of the U. S. army forces in the middle east in 1943. Guests at the wedding included Col. P. A. Shaw, present commandant at Selfridge Field.

Veterans Included In Manpower Draft

Washington, Feb. 9 (AP)—There is no specific exemption for ex-servicemen under the work-or-jail bill which the house passed and the senate is now considering in committee.

But there is a loophole favoring war veterans and it works this way:

Draft boards, in assigning men to war plants to remedy manpower shortages, can pass over ex-servicemen. The power to do this is placed in the hands of the director of selective service.

But the bill does not say draft boards must exempt veterans from the labor draft. The boards can suit themselves.

SPRING THAWS FELT IN ITALY

Supply Center Ablaze; Fifth Army Advances Along Coast

Rome, Feb. 9. (AP)—Railroads at Verona, the crossroads of all-important lines supplying German armies in northern Italy, smoldered today after a massive overnight attack by RAF heavy bombers.

Swarms of American medium bombers and fighterbombers had spent yesterday blasting new gaps in the battered communications which the Nazis must keep open for supplies or for eventual escape from Italy.

Rising temperatures brought a foretaste of spring to the muddy battlefront. The only important actions were reported from the western coastal sector and from the nearby Serchio River valley.

American Fifth army patrols advanced 300 yards along the coast against relatively light opposition, but in the Serchio valley there was sharp fighting when the Germans attacked in company strength against newly-won Allied positions near the village of Burca, north of Gallicano.

Chinese Hit Back At Invading Japs In Three Sectors

BY SPENCER MOOSA

Chungking, Feb. 9. (AP) — Successful Chinese counter-attacks in three provinces were reported by the high command tonight as preparations for a Chinese-Allied offensive against the Japanese were announced by Maj. Gen. Kung Chi-Kuang.

Chinese forces struck back at the invading Japanese in Hunan, Kiangsi and Kwangtung provinces.

Counter-attacking Chinese progressed to the southeastern suburbs of Suichwan, American air base recently captured by Japanese, while fighting continued inside Kanhsien, site of another fallen air base 50 miles to the south.

In southern Hunan province the Chinese retook Ichang, about 100 miles south of Hengyang, and pushed beyond it to establish contact with another Chinese force which dislodged Japanese from strongpoints to the east.

Dog Team Experts And Huskies Sent To Belgian Front

Paris, Feb. 9(AP)—C-47 transport planes delivered 25 dog-team experts, 160 Eskimo huskies and two dozen dog sleds and toboggans to a Belgian air base today for use by Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th army group, in case heavy snow blankets the western front battlefields again.

They would move rations, ammunition and wounded personnel.

The experts, headed by Lt. Col. Norman D. Vaughan of Boston, came to the European theater direct from search and rescue work in Alaska, northern Canada and Newfoundland.

Strike At Briggs Plants In Detroit Makes 13,600 Idle

Detroit, Feb. 9. (AP)—Some 13,600 workers were idle tonight as the result of strikes in plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. and the Square D Co.

The Briggs walkout, involving an estimated 12,500 employes, started Tuesday over a dispute concerning job assignments in the Mack avenue plant and has spread to four other plants here.

Meanwhile, 1,100 Square D Co. employes, members of the United Electrical Workers (CIO), walked out in what was described as a protest against the method of distribution of a recent War Labor Board order granting wage increases to hourly employes and piece makers.

Besides the Mack avenue plant, other Briggs plants affected by the walkout are the Vernor and Outer Drive plants and most of the Connor and Milwaukee avenue units.

Briggs manufactures parts of B-29 bombers and B-32 bombers.

Blaze At Vierling Steel Fatal To 2; Loss Is $750,000

Chicago, Feb. 9. (AP)—One man was killed and the body of another still was being sought tonight in the ruins of the Vierling Steel Works on the near south side, which burned early today at an estimated loss of $750,000.

Firemen still were spraying the wreckage with water to prevent smouldering embers from rekindling. The fire burned with extreme speed and intensity, and a series of explosions blew out the walls.

BIG CANADIAN DRIVE MAKES 5-MILE GAIN

RUHR THREATENED; DOUGHBOYS CLOSE IN ON PRUEM

By Austin Bealmear

Paris, Feb. 9. (AP) — The Canadian army broadened the front of its big new offensive to almost ten miles today after sweeping up 14 towns in gains of nearly five miles, and drove to within four miles of flaming Kleve, the imperiled northern fortress of western Germany's defenses.

The fury of the assault from the west mounted on a 200-mile front as Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's Canadian and British forces battered eastward between the Rhine and Maas Rivers 27 miles from Wesel, at the northwest corner of the Ruhr valley—last great source of the enemy's war potential.

Giant Dam Outflanked

The U. S. First army 85 miles to the south outflanked the giant Schwammenauel dam, whose pent-up waters could be unloosed to crush any British and American drive on the Ruhr from their springboard positions north and east of Aachen.

Striking behind one of the heaviest barrages ever laid down by First army guns, the Americans seized Hasenfeld, less than a mile east of the dam, and brought the structure itself within range of machineguns.

Farther south, the U. S. Third army was hammering at the German defenders of the Eifel mountain stronghold of Pruem from positions three-quarters of a mile northwest of the city. The enemy fought furiously to hold the important communications center.

Colmar Liberated

Less than six miles to the north, doughboys already eight miles inside the Reich threatened to outflank Pruem by forcing two crossings of the river of the same name. They were within four miles of the main road east out of the city.

In southern Alsace, all enemy resistance was wiped out, an official announcement said, and victory flags flew over the city of Colmar. The only Germans remaining on French soil were in northern Alsace, where they were dug in for nothing more than a defensive stand.

Field Marshal Montgomery threw reinforcements into the mounting battle at the northern hinge of the western front, where Canadians and Tommies were slogging through the mud against still relatively light resistance about 360 miles from the Russians on the eastern front.

In the second day of the offensive they already were well into the Reichswald—a forest protecting Kleve from the west—and were hacking into the Siegfried line after passing through what veteran troopers called "the valley of death."

It was possible that at some point the attack had carried through the first of three defense

Escanaba M. P. In Paris Plays With Yank Dance Band

Pfc. Garbe

Parisians turning on their radios around 9 o'clock Wednesday nights may hear music of the "Snowdrops"—dance band composed of some 24 Yanks of the army military police. The band's solo clarinetist and saxophone player is Pfc. Daniel Garbe of this city.

The boys organized their band almost a year ago in London and have been fortunate enough to be stationed together up to the present time. In addition to their weekly radio broadcast, they play for dances on Saturday and Sunday nights.

Writing to his wife, who lives at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Fletcher, Gladstone, Route One, Pfc. Garbe said, "We sound like Glenn Miller!" He went on to say that the boys would like to stick together as a dance band when they return to the United States.

The Escanaba M. P. is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Garbe, 911 North 20th street, and has been overseas 13½ months. He was graduated from the Escanaba high school in 1941 and while there was a member of the school band.

belts which make up the westwall on this front.

A front dispatch timed at 5 p. m., reporting the broadening of the assault lines, said the prisoner count had risen to 1,800.

Enemy movement northward from the Venlo area on the British Second army front suggested the Germans were weakening their forces there to try to stem the Canadian drive.

The Germans, apparently fearing another attack from Holland positions north of Kleve, began flooding the flatlands north of Nijmegen.

The Germans admitted the Canadians had driven breaches in the lines, predicted stronger assaults were coming, and said Allied artillery fire was raking the front as far south as the Aachen area.

To the south, where the First army is threatening to break out into the Cologne plain, the 78th division advanced to within machinegun range of the giant Schwammenauel dam behind one of the heaviest artillery barrages ever fired by that army.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army, exploiting its wide break through the Siegfried line, pushed two columns a quarter mile south to within three-fourths of a mile northwest of Pruem.

The official announcement of the liquidation of the Colmar pocket said the French second armored and Ninth colonial divisions had reached Chalampe, across the Rhine from Neunberg. This is the site of the last escape bridge, which the Germans blew up yesterday.

Hermansville Meets Alpha On Saturday

The Hermansville Redskins will take on one of the strongest teams in Class E when they clash with Alpha on the Powers Court Saturday night.

Alpha has won nine games this season and lost two. Coach Gollakner will bring to Powers virtually the same team that Alpha had last session. Considerable interest is created in the game as Coach Mantei of Hermansville will be sending his Redskins against the team he coached last season.

Meanwhile the Redskins have won five games and lost four this season. Coach Mantei was not satisfied with the performance of his team last week as they nosed out Daggett 40-38. The mentor is drilling overtime this week to speed up their offense and tighten up some lose ends on defense. His starting line-up will probably see Dani and Menard at Forward, Mauli at Center and Maga and LaCoursiere or Sutherland at Guard positions.

The revised Hermansville schedule for the remainder of the season (with home games on the Powers court):

Feb. 10, Alpha at Powers.
Feb. 16, Felch at Powers.
Feb. 20, At Norway Reserves.
Feb. 22, Stephenson at Powers.
Feb. 27, Harris at Powers.
March 3, At Alpha.

He was awarded the Purple Heart, and shortly afterward returned to the states, arriving in March of 1944. He was sent to Ashford general hospital at White Sulphur Springs for treatment, and following his recovery was assigned to Fort Belvoir as instructor in explosives.

Philippine Capital Food Pinch Acute

San Francisco, Feb. 9 (AP)—Manila's civilian food shortage is so acute that President Sergio Osmena plans full scale relief after military needs have been met, Arthur Feldman, Blue network correspondent, reported from the Philippine capital today.

Feldman said Osmena feels "the needs of the Filipinos in Manila are more acte by far than those of people in any other sections of the Philippines thus far liberated."

Food distribution will be on a "no questions" asked basis.

Debate On Death Penalty On Next Week In Lansing

Lansing, Feb. 9 (AP)— Hearings on a bill proposing mandatory punishment of first degree murders with death in the electric chair will start next week before the house state affairs committee, members of which said they intended to toss the issue onto the floor for debate.

Rep. Maurice E. Post, Rockford Republican chairman of the committee, said the hearings would start "any time after Tuesday," a circumstance which indicated the committee at its meeting Tuesday would complete action on another bill seeking to reduce maximum legal small loan interest rates.

It was learned that E. William Nelson, state banking commissioner, had advised the committee in a closed meeting that small loan companies could continue to do a profitable business if rates were reduced to a maximum of 2¼ per cent a month on loans up to $100, and 2 per cent a month on the unpaid balance in excess of $100. Nelson, however, refused to make any recommendation to the committee.

Small loans may not exceed $300 under the law, which now fixes comparable rates of 3 per cent and 2½ per cent a month.

Post said the capital punishment hearings would be open to any witness desiring to be heard. The measure was introduced by Rep. Joseph E. Warner, Ypsilanti Republican, who declared he believed the recent slaying of Senator Warren G. Hooper had created sufficient feeling to assure adoption of the measure.

Senator Clarence A. Reid, Detroit Republican, launched a move in the senate to remove President Roosevelt's picture from the top of the Democratic column on state and national ballots. His bill would forbid using the initial, name or picture of any person now holding public office or who has held office in the past 20 years.

A bill was introduced by Senator Don Vanderwerp, Fremont, to make it illegal for any legislator, attorney or otherwise, to be employed at a fee or wage in excess of the reasonable value of the services if performed by a nonlegislator and if the employer would benefit from any action of the legislature.

The senate liquor control committee indicated it would support seven bills, five of them tightening liquor laws.

The five included a proposal to allow local referenda on closing places selling beer and wine from 2 a. m. Sunday until Monday morning. Another would allow local referenda on the sale of beer and wine in a township or village. Another would limit the number of liquor-by-the-glass licensees to one for every 1,500 of population, instead of one to 650 as at present.

The others, previously introduced, would increase the profit of package liquor dealers, give 40 per cent of license refunds to sheriffs for liquor law enforcement, forbid children to enter establishments selling liquor and extend the six-months tourist license to eight months.

BOYS SELL BONDS

Washington, Feb. 9 (AP)—Newspaper boys sold more than $128,000,000 worth of War Savings Stamps from May, 1941, through October, 1944, the treasury said today.

The newspaper boys have sold 9.16 per cent of all stamps sold in this country during the three year period.

Nazi U-Boats Get Closer To Shore; Losses Not Given

Washington, Feb. 9. (AP)—German submarine activity increased slightly in January, but losses of Allied merchant shipping did not change substantially, the monthly Anglo-American statement reported tonight.

The statement, issued under the authority of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, said U-boats, by making use of new devices, "penetrated further into focal areas of shipping close to shore," but described countermeasures as "encouraging."

No figures on losses were given.

The Germans said the Russians were only six miles from Stargard —within artillery range—and only 22 miles from Stettin, Pomeranian capital.

Moscow's communique said that Arnswalde, key road junction nine miles southeast of captured and Brallentin, had been surrounded. The Russians now are fighting to exterminate its garrison.

At the northeastern end of the Russian front, moving toward the Baltic, Soviet units captured Glambeck in a five mile advance northeast of Reetz, taken Thursday, and at the southwestern end other forces seized Ploenzig in a seven-mile advance northwest of Bernstein.

HASSELL STILL FLYING PLANES

Is Commanding Officer At Goose Bay Base In Labrador

Grand Rapids—Wartime exploits of a once familiar figure in Grand Rapids—Fish Hassell by name — are recounted in the current issue of a national magazine.

On army records he is Lt. Col. Bert Raymond John Hassell Rockford, Ill., but to old friends and new he's plain "Fish," a nickname he earned while blazing aviation's trail in and around Grand Rapids 25 to 30 years ago—when a forced landing on Chicago's lake front gave pilot and passenger a thorough wetting.

Lt. Col. Hassell is commanding officer of the air base at Goose Bay, Labrador, key point in the vast airport transport system through which bombers and supplies and personnel are shuttled across the north Atlantic. A companion base is at Gander Lake, New Foundland, 400 miles away, where Group Capt. David F. Anderson, DFC, Royal Air force, is in command.

The magazine articles stresses the friendship and teamwork between these men to "provide the security and comfort of long runways, clear approaches, warm rooms and fine food for allied airmen who shuttle combat and transport planes across the north Atlantic in a never-ending stream."

The two bases are known in army parlance as "Goose" and "Gander" and "what's sauce for the Goose is sauce for the Gander," as Fish informed Capt. Anderson when he sent the latter several bottles of much-yearned-for Worcestershire sauce last Christmas eve.

Lt. Col. Hassell is portrayed, in his middle 50's, as a man able to "whip any young B17 pilot at badminton and make his opponent think he has been the bird." On alternate days he takes a scalding Finnish bath and a "long, hot drink of whisky."

He is credited with keeping morale high among his men in the bleak but busy outpost. Cited as the base of a piggery to provide fresh pork—after $22,000 worth of storage pork spoiled. He assigned a sergeant from Iowa, former farmer, to superintendent the piggery and, with him, flew down to Maine to purchase and deliver, by air, the original stock.

He Hunts—and Remembers

He goes out himself, flying a B25, to hunt for pilots who are forced down in the area. He was forced down in the far north once himself, in 1928, when he and the late Parker D. Kramer started from Rockford, Ill., to Stockholm, Sweden, in a single-engine plane to prove the feasibility of flying the north Atlantic. They ran out of gas over Greenland—and it took them two weeks to walk back to the refueling base they had missed.

Hassel lived in Iron Mountain in his boyhood days.

Hate-Mongers Rocking The Boat In America

BY ERIC A. JOHNSTON
(President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States)
Written for NEA Service

Of all the social problems that face our country in this era of crisis, that of national unity seems to me the most challenging. Most other problems will not be solved if the American people are divided into mutually hostile and suspicious groups, sections and classes. More than that: Even if solutions were possible under such conditions, they would hardly be worth achieving. They would be empty victories, utterly meaningless, if the character of our American civilization were changed in the process.

E. A. Johnston

And the core of that civilization, it seems to me, is in the sacred dignity of the human being, regardless of race or class or place of birth. Individual freedom and liberty within a framework of law are essential to the America we know and love. Without these elements it would no longer be our America, except in the geographical sense. In the deeper moral sense it would be an alien country, where those of us who cherish ideals of freedom would be exiles in our own homes.

Must Face Reality

We are all of us, in our several ways, seeking to preserve America. Millions of our sons are doing it on battlefields with bombs and bayonets. Those of us who build and manufacture do it with machines and goods. But what all of us have in mind is not simply the physical preservation of our country. It is the preservation of those human values which are implicit in the word America—the freedom, the opportunities, the equalities, the democratic ideals celebrated in our national songs and poetry and books and holiday speeches.

I have been privileged to travel widely in our country, and I do not hesitate to offer my personal testimony that race and group tensions are increasing to an alarming degree. Men and women who should know better—who do know better—allow themselves to mouth the catch phrases of anti Semitism and anti-foreignism, of anti-business or anti-labor, anti-farm. Most of them are not themselves aware that they have been infected by the virus of intolerance which already has the whole world writhing in the fever of war.

When there's a riot in Detroit or Harlem, when racial antagonisms break into the open in Boston or Brooklyn, it's more comfortable to shrug them off as local incidents. But the truth must be faced. These episodes of violence are symptoms of pressures and emotions and maladjustments which are nationwide.

The first thing we must do is to confront the reality. Obviously the most violent and deep-seated of our antipathies are racial and religious. Widespread though these expressions of group hatred are, it is a hopeful fact that they still afflict only a small minority of the American population. That minority can be curbed and re-educated if conscious and organized efforts are undertaken.

Destructive Policy

At the very worst, that minority can be frightened into desisting. Not by legal or physical threats—you can't legislate love of one's neighbor. Americans can be made sharply aware that intolerance endangers not merely the small groups against whom it is directed but the country as a whole. The obstreperous hatemongers and their stupid or frivolous fellow-travelers can be made to understand that it simply isn't smart to rock the American boat in which they, too, are passengers.

America has prospered because it has opened avenues of economic expression to all men who had the urge and the capacity to advance themselves. Wherever we erect barriers on the grounds of race or religion, or of occupational or professional status, we hamper the fullest expansion of our economic society. Intolerance is poor economy. Prejudice doesn't pay. Discrimination is destructive.

There are some in our country —industrialists, white collar workers, laboring people—who hold to the myth that economic progress can be attained on the principle of an unbalanced see-saw. They think that if some groups can be forever held down, the others will forever enjoy economic privileges and prosperity at the end which is up.

Fortunately, it does not work that way. Any advantage thus gained must be paid for out of the fruits of the productive plant. The withholding of jobs and business opportunities from some people does not make more jobs and opportunities for others.

Perpetuating poverty for some merely guarantees stagnation for all. True economic progress demands that all artificial barriers erected by ignorance and intolerance be removed. To put it in the simplest terms, we are all in business together. Intolerance is a species of boycott and any business of job boycott is a cancer in the economic body of the nation.

Let's not apologize for the amazing variety of our human material here in America. Let us rather glory in it as the source of our robust spirit and opulent achievements. Let's not deny that there are differences in race and that our country has all the fifty-seven varieties of God's humanity. Let us merely make clear that these differences cannot be measured on any scale of good, better and best. They are all equally valid and all must continue to contribute to the magnificent mosiac of American life.

All Have Contributed

Subtract from the grand total of America the contributions of our racial and religious and economic minorities — and what remains? Subtract foreign-born Andrew Carnegie from our metallurgical industry; or David Sarnoff from American radio; or George Gershwin and the Negro composers from our native music; or Norwegian-born Knute Rockne from our football, or Danish-born William S. Knudsen from the automotive industry; or Russian-born Major de Seversky from American aviation; or Belgian-born Leo H. Baekeland from American chemical achievements; or slave-born Dr. George Washington Carver from biological developments. The temptation is to list hundreds and thousands who have thrown their particular genius into the American melting pot.

Too many Americans —indeed, too many of the immigrants themselves, whatever their race or land of birth—behave as if America only gave things to newcomers. We need to be reminded that America received more than it gave. After all, our country let the strangers in because it needed their muscle power, their purchasing power, their fecundity and their brains.

On the whole, America, through the generations, has shown itself capable of preventing natural prejudices from spilling over into unnatural intolerance. On the whole the trend has been towards greater equality. Even the worst manifestations of prejudice have been gradually tempered.

The danger today comes because the normal prejudices are being stimulated by deliberate propaganda. Watered by hate they flourish in more and more places as outright intolerance and discrimination.

To the Hindu, the bitterest possible curse is the expressed hope that he may some day eat beef.

Ernie Pyle Appreciates All Kind Words He Gets

(Editor's Note: Ernie Pyle is with the Navy in the Pacific. Pending receipt of his dispatches from that war theater we are publishing a few articles he wrote before his take-off from San Francisco, of which the following is one.

ERNIE PYLE

San Francisco — These four months of furlough in America, away from the war, have gone like the wind. They have been full to over-flowing. So full, in fact, that hardly anything has happened that I had hoped would happen.

Pyle

There has been no rest. There has been no time for composure. No day has been long enough to finish the things required in that day.

I've had the one magnificent privilege of being away from the war, but aside from that I've had more duties and worked harder here at home on "vacation" than most of the time at the front.

Normal life for me has disappeared. The bulk of my time is now given to other people. It's almost impossible to count on a single hour alone. To get half a day uninterrupted with my own family I have to plan it days ahead and then bar the gates.

If the intrusions were by mere publicity-seekers, then I could be tough. But the pressure upon me is not from publicity-seekers or the curious.

—Contacted by Many—

Ninety per cent of the people who phone, write, visit or stop me in public places, have legitimate reasons for doing so. They are people who have done kind little things for me. They are people who just want to tell me, in complete sincerity, that they think I've done a good job—and a fellow never gets tired of hearing that.

They are people whose sons I've known overseas; they are people who write to tell me their sons are dead: they are people who want help in something they're doing for the war; people who have a part in this pattern of war that has grown up around me.

Yes, 90 per cent of the destruction of my private life is from pure goodness and sincerity in people, and from unavoidable duties that have become as much a part of my job as the job itself.

I have never aspired to be famous. If I had, then I could say to myself "all right brother, you made your own bed, so now lie in it."

But this thing just happened. It came without planning or aspiration. I guess it comes in the category of an act of God like a blizzard or slipping on a banana peel.

You have to adjust yourself to this new condition, or else you're lost. You can't fight it, you can't ignore it, you can't run away from it. You've got to accept it. I do accept it as graciously as I can, but I feel sad about it.

I feel sad because it has given me the big things of life, and taken away the precious little things.

—Dreads Phone Rings—

It has given me money, yet I dread to hear the telephone ring.

It has brought me a measure of renown, yet made me afraid to go into a restaurant because people whisper and stare, and I feel self-conscious.

It has put my book at the top of the best-seller list, but robbed me of the time to read other people's books.

It has put me on easy terms with the great, but forbidden me the privilege of sitting alone with my old true friends.

It has made my homely face familiar throughout America, but taken away that saving gift of serenity of mind and soul. My life now, day and night, is a frenzy. There is no mental leisure in it; never the freedom to sit down and let your mind go blank.

I like people. I always have and I still do. And so it hurts me to have to shut off phone calls in a hotel. It hurts to turn letters over to a secretary. It hurts to tell old friends I can't see them today—maybe tomorrow. It hurts to have to hide and cower like a criminal to get just an hour or two by myself.

But that's the way it is. I don't resent it, and I don't blame anybody. I'm grateful for the respect of such a great portion of America. I'm trying to take the bad things with the good, and get along the best I can.

Sometimes I feel like sitting down and crying because my old life is gone. But most of the time I see what is behind it, and realize that a man is blessed who is publicly obsessed by the goodness in people, instead of the bad.

Meaningless?

IF THERE was definite assurance that this nation's interests in the postwar period are being fully and irrevocably protested at the Big Three conference now in progress, there would be greater faith among the people of this nation, in the significance of this meeting. Previous meetings of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin have not brought results that would engender confidence.

Following the first meeting of President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill this nation was thrilled by the teams of the Atlantic Charter, only to learn, later, that the so-called Atlantic Charter was but an oral agreement. The later meeting of Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin did not prevent the complete ignoring of this nation's policies in Greece, Poland and the Balkans. As a matter of record about all that has been accomplished at these conferences has been the determination of just how much more aid this nation can afford to give to her allies.

It is true that agreement as to strategies to be employed in the prosecution of the war in Europe have been helpful in obtaining military results up to this point, but, also, up this point there has been established no clear-cut picture as to the part this nation will be permitted to play in the postwar era.

The lack of a definite postwar international program on the part of this nation, up to this time, may be the reason these Big Three conferences have been meaningless for America.

If so, no time should be lost in the adoption of the forthright program being proposed by U. S. Senator Arthur Vandenberg, or some similar plan.

So far we are giving and giving and getting no place.

Adults Like It

POPULARITY of the adult education program in Escanaba is typical of the attention the project is receiving in other communities, according to results of a statewide survey made recently.

While there is some interest in basic subjects, the adults are enrolling for a wide variety of courses, including painting, photography, public speaking, music, creative writing and other cultural activities. Timely subjects as causes of racial trouble, labor legislation, housing, international peace and public health also are being studied.

Noting a demand for adult education, Governor Harry F. Kelly asked the 1944 legislature to make an appropriation for an experimental program. The initial appropriation was $250,000, which is used to pay 75 per cent of the cost of personnel to supervise local instruction or discussion meetings.

There is much evidence that the experiment is a decided success, and that Governor Kelly may have to carry out of his promise of making more funds available if needed for expansion of the Michigan adult education program.

Franco Spurned

ONE encouraging aspect of the Big Three conference is the revelation that Prime Minister Churchill some last November turned down an offer by Franco to serve as a mediator between the Allies and the Axis. At another time, the Spanish Fascist leader proposed a postwar European alliance against Russia, again bringing out the stale herring of the Bolshevist threat. This Franco proposal was also spurned.

The democratic nations must not forget that at one time Franco was an open ally of Hitler and Mussolini and even long after the end of the Spanish civil war expressed hopes for an Axis victory. Franco has not taken Spain into this war as a military ally of the Axis because his country was too impoverished by months of civil strife. He deserves no credit for staying out.

Land of Opportunity

FROM the earliest Colonial days, America has been a land of opportunity—for those who are willing to work.

This fact was well demonstrated in the career of Chester Hjortur Thordarson, immigrant from Iceland, who died in a Chicago hospital Tuesday night. Settling in a small Wisconsin community with his parents, Thordarson acquired only a seventh grade education in the public schools but he did not quit studying.

Taking employment with a Milwaukee electrical firm when in his teens, he received the attractive salary of four dollars per week. Out of the four dollars he set aside each week one dollar for the purchase of books on electricity and other technical subjects in which he was interested.

Later, he moved to Chicago where he started an electrical manufacturing firm of his own at the age of 27. Possessing a keen scientific mind, he invented various electrical devices and received national recognition for his improvements on electrical transformers. One of his early achievements was the installation of a huge electrical plant in Philadelphia, a job that the Edison company declined to tackle.

Casting about for a summer home a quarter century ago, Thordarson acquired ownership of all the property on Rock island, just north of Washington in Lake Michigan, which he transferred into a miniature replica of his native Iceland. There, he spent his declining years, still studying science, Icelandic literature and the other arts. He believed one was never too old to learn. He died at the age of 78.

Biggest Convoy

SOME late statistics on the record-breaking convoy of 167 merchant ships that crossed safely to England some weeks ago serve to illustrate again the remarkable success of the anti-submarine war, the efficiency of Allied escort, and the splendid work of the merchant marine of ours and other nations.

More than a billion tons of cargo were shipped in this one trip, including 10,000 trucks and other vehicles, and a variety of materials that ranged from food and lumber to locomotives and explosives.

These samestatistics reveal that 75 of these 167 vessels (43 per cent of the convoy) were American. This too is remarkable, considering the dispersal of ours hipping to the various theaters of war, and the state of our merchant marine at the war's outbreak. And it is another tribute to the skill and tireless industry of the shipbuilders who made it possible.

1944 OUTPUT OFF

(Iron Mountain News)

Iron ore production last year is officially reported to have been off seven per cent, compared with production the previous year. It was planned that way. Shipments were held back with purpose of reducing stocks in hand at the lower lake docks and furnaces. What was sought was obtained. Stocks immediately available are considerably less than they were a year ago. They are, however, ample to permit of all the output the furnaces can make before the 1945 shipments begin to be received.

If they had been needed Lake Superior shipments last year doubtless could have been in excess of 90,000,000 tons. But the producers were under considerably less pressure than in earlier war years. Official Washington shared, in late summer, the false optimism about the probable time for the end of the war in Europe. The opinion that it would be pretty well over by the end of the year was generally held. If matters had fallen out that way there would have been a material tapering off in the demand for ore.

Now because there is general disposition to assure that the country will be safe rather tthan sorry, and because lower lake stocks are less than they were on corresponding date last year, the mine managers are being urged to step up production during the winter. More days are being worked at the mines and most of the men employed in them are putting in more time. The ore in stock ready for shipment when the winter ends will be much larger in amount than was being planned for only a few months ago.

Gracie Allen Says

Today I'm going to dispense a bit of advice to all the nice young war brides our boys have been sending home from Australia, Scotland, Ireland, Egypt and all the other countries overseas where we have bases.

I'm afraid you girls will find America a bit different from your homeland. Those of you from Egypt will miss the camels, both for riding and smoking purposes.

You lassies from Scotland may be surprised to find that men don't wear skirts here, but in our part of California neither do the women.

You girls from England and Australia will find that bobby sox aren't worn by policemen but by members of a strange cult given to the practice of swooning and collecting autographs.

And you will certainly be at something of a loss in a domestic argument as you can't threaten to go home to mother, particularly if she lives in Sydney, Australia. But your husband will be happy because it will mark one of the first times the mother-in-law can definitely be said to be down under.

IT'S HARD TO BELIEVE

Q. Will you please discuss the origin of the word "alcohol"? We want it for our scrapbook of your articles.

A. The word alcohol is a corruption of the Arabic al-kuhl, the name of a powder used by Arabian women for blackening their eyelids. The powder, also known as "kohl," is impalpable, that is, so fine that, when rubbed between the fingers, it cannot be felt.

In some strange way the fineness of the powder suggested highly refined volatile liquids, and in time al-kuhl became alcohol and lost its identity with powder, except in Spanish, in which language alcohol means "spirit of wine" and "a cosmetic for penciling the eyebrows."

It's hard to believe that when a lovely lady enhances the beauty of her eyes with eye shadow she is literally indulging in alcohol, but it's true.

How Did it Start? Q. Did the Irish potato get its name because it originated in Ireland?

A. The Irish potato was brought to the British Isles by colonists returning from America. Potatoes were first cultivated in the Isles by Sir Walter Raleigh on his Cork, Ireland, estate.

In the course of time, because of England's high bounty on grain, the potato became the staple food crop of Ireland. There and elsewhere the potato became known as the Irish potato, to distinguish it from the sweet potato.

In 1846 the potato blight wiped out the Irish crop within a few weeks, creating such widespread distress and sheer starvation that the Irish people, in their despair, fled in enormous numbers to America, the first of the great million foreigners to these shores before immigration was reduced by the Act of 1924.

World Events Analyzed

Eighth Air Force Bomber Base, Somewhere in England—Call it morale or spirit or whatever you want to, but this 446th bomber group has got it.

It isn't that they're cocky in any juvenile way. It's just that you have a sense of men working together seriously on a task on which they are concentrating all possible effort.

Childs

A lot of it must come from the commanding officer, who is Colonel Troy W. Crawford. A flyer for 15 years, he is called "The Old Man," and that is the legend painted in big red letters on the side of his P-47.

"The Old Man" uses his P-47 to ride herd on squadrons when they are forming up after the take-off. He does it with the same sure expertness with which, back in his home in Texas, a good cowhand would ride herd on cattle.

Since he became commanding officer of the base, six months ago, this bomber group has taken the lead over all the others in the division. From December 24 to January 1, the 446th had the greatest number of hits that any group in the division ever had. Through photographs taken by automatic cameras at the time of bombing, a careful record is kept, and scored of individual crews, squadrons and groups are checked for accuracy.

—FINDS BEST MAN FOR JOB—

After he took over the base, Colonel Crawford started the process of shifting squadron leaders and crew leaders in an effort to find the best men for particular jobs. That is how he explains the record established by his group—getting the right men in the right places.

One of his crew leaders of whom he speaks most proudly is Captain Alfred Knopf Jr. of New York, son of the publisher of the same name. Knopf has flown about half of the 30 missions which constitute a tour of duty.

The executive officer of the base is Major J. L. Spooner, who comes from John Nance Garner's home town, Uvalde, Texas. Spooner is responsible for all the housekeeping for several thousand men on the base. He is responsible for bombs and fuel, as well as the smallest details of living.

It's just about a 24-hour job. On one of the nights I was at the base, he was wakened at 2 in the morning by a crisis caused by frozen waterpipes, and he didn't get into bed again until 11 that night. Spooner does a lot of cussing over British "inefficiency," or perhaps it's merely their different way of doing things.

—HE'S STILL A TEXAN—

Like most Texans, he's just as much a Texan in gray, rainy England as he is in Uvalde. He reacts against a certain kind of British snobbism and class distinction. Once at tea at a local aristocrat's castle, some Britishers were reciting their distinguished prewar occupations, and when Spooner's turn came he said he was a goat herder—which is literally true, since he has a goat ranch outside Uvalde.

The senior intelligence officer at the base is Major Milton R. Stahl of St. Louis, former chairman of the Missouri Public Service Commission. He arranges and supervises the briefings. Although over 50, he has gone on 12 bombing missions and has a bronze star, equivalent to the distinguished flying cross, and an air medal with oak leaf cluster. Stahl says it is important for an intelligence officer to go on missions because he gets an idea of how the men see things, and they feel he is one of them. In 15 months at the base, he has had only six leaves.

In London and in Washington you hear a great deal about publicity for the air forces. I don't think these men are interested in publicity as such. But they do want the people back home to have some understanding of the magnitude and importance of the job they are doing. They do not want it taken for granted.

The overall picture—how much air power has contributed to the winning of the war—is not their concern. In any event, that appraisal can come only after final victory, when a thorough and impartial study will be in order.

Certainly the success of D-Day and the sweep across France that followed would not have been possible without the preliminary work of the air forces. Certainly the intensive bombing of Germany has contributed to the successes of the Russian armies.

The men of the 446th bomber group talk very little about such things. They're concerned with the number of hits on yesterday's target: With getting their planes into the air and getting them back again.

AMAZING FUTURE—What the future holds no man can tell for certain, but if the experiments of industrial scientists are any indication, you are going to have many "benefits" you never before dreamed of.

Dunathan

There is for instance experiments in the vitamin field. Apparently vitamins have not been completely discredited for we find Business Week reporting that your postwar apple may have more vitamins C and B1 than they do now. It is explained that a "typical eating apple," whatever that is, contains slightly more vitamins A and B2 that a "typical orange", but it lack the other two vitamins.

"Particular aspiration of the apple grower is that the ultimate glass of apple juice will contain as much vitamin C as a similar glass of orange juice," reports Business Week.

How much enthusiasm this will arouse among apple eaters is questionable. Most apple addicts would just as soon eat two or three apples and thereby consume as much vitamins as you find in a "typical orange". The farm boy who eats a dozen apples a day wouldn't notice the difference, either.

* * *

JUST THAW 'EM—Besides the vitamin-rich apples, there is other postwar progress in the offing. While Escanaba has never been much for pampering its appetite with hors d'oeuvres, it may turn to such fripperies in the future.

When that time comes it will not be necessary for the hostess to wear herself out fixing up dainty snacks to accompany the beer. All she will have to do is order an assortment of frozen appetizers and thaw them out. Think of the millions of man-hours this will save the nation.

* * *

DIAPER CRISIS — With the cocktail-hour emergency solved by the ingenuity of American business, we can turn to something that immediately concerns the nation. It is the diaper crisis.

Unless you have a baby in the house you probably are uninterested in learning that the diaper industry can't keep up with the demand. Business Week reports with admirable candor that "frantic mothers attest that there are not enough infant sarongs available to meet essential needs," despite the fact that 95 per cent more diapers were made in 1944 than in 1939.

The situation is one to call for drastic action. From the evidence presented it is clearly established that the nation suffers not from a shortage of diapers but from a surplus of babies. This also is to be made a subject for study.

* * *

SURPLUSES—After reporting on shortages it is a pleasure to announce that more and more surplus military items are filtering into retail channels. This is going to help a great deal—even though there isn't even one diaper on the list.

There are several unusual items, however.

Latest offering is 6,000 gallons of castor oil put up for sale at the Pueblo, Colo., ordnance depot. This will cause no great amount of rejoicing among the youngsters who, apparently, will receive all but a few spoonsful of the internal ointment. The few spoonsful is that quantity parents will swallow smilingly to show Junior that it "tastes just like candy" — the liars.

The army is also selling off sundry other items, listed here because you probably have a use for them. Included are:

Twelve live monkeys, several hundred dogs and horses, a quantity of wooden guns used for training in the early days of the defense program, 476,921 pieces of mosquito netting, and one lot of small snowshoes.

Just to show the ingenuity of the American business man, Business Week reports that the snowshoes "were snapped up" by a novelty manufacturer who fitted them with legs "and sold them as smart cocktail tables." This manufacturer was probably looking forward to the time when those frozen hors d'oeuvres could be thawed out for the cocktail trade.

* * *

BIG ENOUGH—While the latest unit of the army's fleet is in use right now, it may become a surplus commodity after the war and then can be sold to Sunday schools, veterans' organizations or others interested in getting enough ice cream for a picnic at the park.

The unit is large refrigerator barge designed to provide fresh-frozen foods for forces in the South Pacific who are weary of dry rations.

Equipment on board includes an ice machine of five tons daily capacity and a freezer that turns out more than a gallon of ice cream a minute.

The capacity of that ice cream freezer seems barely adequate to meet the consumption records at Pioneer Trail Park picnics. It would come in handy late in the afternoon, however, when the kids are tapering off.

* * *

A NEW CHEESE—Before the war this country's ladies received most of their karakul fur from the Near East. Now karakul sheep are being raised in this country and the growers are faced with a problem—what to do with the milk from the ewe after the lamb is killed for its pelt. One grower has solved the problem by converting the milk into feta cheese, said to be popular in Europe. The cheese will sell at about $1 the pound—and should appeal to those who wear karakul coats.

INTO THE PAST

10 Years Ago—1935

Manistique—Mr. and Mrs. Raymond VanDyck and Norbert VanDyck expect to leave tomorrow for Depere to attend the wedding of Miss Bertha VanDyck. They will also visit with relatives before returning here. Miss VanDyck is the sister of Raymond and Norbert VanDyck.

Gladstone — A beautiful silver cup has been put up as the trophy in club championship challenge matches by H. B. Willis, Argonne, Wis., formerly of Gladstone and former president of the Gladstone Rifle and Pistol club.

Miss Margaret O'Connell is spending a few weeks at Lauerman Brothers in Marinette, in the interests of her department in the Escanaba store.

Rapid River — The Anderson Brothers Lumber company will operate its sawmill during the spring season. From all indications a lengthy run will be had. The mill will run approximately six weeks, employing about forty men during that time.

Miss Rose Bink, known to Milwaukee radio fans as Miss Rosa Dante, is in demand as a broadcasting artist, according to the following clipping from the Milwaukee Leader:

"Miss Rosa Dante, prominent soprano and accompanist, has been obtained by WCAY, Milwaukee Civic Broadcasting Station, as a professional entertainer and assistant studio director. Miss Dante is 19 years old. Miss Dante is one of the most clever artists that WCAY have and the requests prove the statement."

Julius Schemmel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schemmel, 513 South Eighth street, will leave for Bovey, Minn., with his bride, Wednesday after a week's honeymoon spent in this city and vicinity. Mr. Schemmel was married to Miss Sarah Doyle, of Calumet, last Tuesday, the ceremony being performed in Duluth.

NEW YORK—Ira Gershwin met Ludwig Bemelmans, the artist-author, whose friends suspect that the autobiographic data in his books are somewhat fanciful. "I hear that you once were a headwaiter in a New York hotel," Gershwin said to him. "What hotel was that?" . . . "The Ritz-Carlton," said Bemelmans . . . "Were you a headwaiter in the days when we used to hold our annual ASCAP dinners there?" asked Gershwin . . . "Of course," Bemelmans replied. "That was an event which we never could forget—because in that one room, at ASCAP dinners, was a collection of the oddest and most disreputable faces in all New York" . . . Gershwin turned to the friends who were suspicious of Bemelmans' tales and assured them: "He tells the truth."

SAM KEENE is chief of the UNRRA mission in Italy. In the past few weeks Keene has had to attend a number of official receptions for dignitaries who visited Italy. These receptions were held despite the cold weather and lack of fuel . . . "I went to all of them," Keene reported to Washington. "I dressed formally at the receptions to the highest ranking visiting firemen. By formal dress I mean that I wore my sweater under instead of over my shirt."

FRED ALLEN went to Boston a few days ago to attend the Clover Club dinner for Neal O'Hara. O'Hara pointed to some of the notables present. "That man sitting over there is the president of Lever Bros.," he told Allen. "He's one of the most successful industrialists in the world. Every time he takes a breath he makes $87" . . . "That man sitting at the next table to him is Mr. McCarthy of the Internal Revenue Department," said Allen, "and he breathes a little faster."

AT PEARL HARBOR recently a publicized hero learned that he was to receive a decoration from Admiral Halsey the next morning. He celebrated that night and refused to listen to the pleas of his friends that he retire early to be in shape for the ceremonies. He drank until 5 a. m., when his friends finally put him to bed . . . He was awakened two hours later, still woozy in the half-world between drink and hangover. His friends dressed him, brought him to the ceremony stand and stood beside him to keep him upright . . . When Halsey started to pin the medal on him the hero wavered a bit and Halsey whiffed the alcohol. The Admiral, holding the medal, turned to the hero's friends and said: "I don't think he can stand the weight."

GILBERT MILLER, the producer, now overseas for the Navy, is a veteran traveler. He's crossed the Atlantic at least 50 times and has visited the most distant parts of the world. Miller's most exciting trip was made aboard a Dutch freighter. The captain, as usual, knew him and invited him to dinner every night. One night, during a heavy storm, Miller was awakened by a steward who said the captain wanted to see him immediately, and that it was urgent. The producer dressed, was given a raincoat and, after almost being washed overboard, managed to reach the bridge. . . . "Gilbert," the captain greeted him, "I'm about to tell you something which I wouldn't tell any other passenger. Gilbert, the ship is sinking."

BEFORE THE battle of El Alemein, when the war in Africa seemed lost for the British, a British commission which had been sent to see King Farouk, couldn't get permission to see him. They got in finally, by driving up to the a place in an armored tank Their mission accomplished, they left the palace in the same tank. The driver started to take a short cut. "No, no," said the leader of the commission, patting the documents Farouk had signed, "one must never drive a tank over the King's lawn."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

(Lt. Col. R. S. Allen now on active service)

Washington—Diplomats who studied the agenda of the Big Three conference in advance, say that Franklin Roosevelt faces the most crucial conference of his career. Out of it will come either world peace and an ordered world for the next fifty years; or the early seeds of another war.

Pearson

Roosevelt's problem will be to persuade Stalin and Churchill to go along on broad unselfish peace plans, including Dumbarton Oaks, at a time when most of the trump cards no longer are in his hands.

Four years ago, just after France fell, Churchill would have given anything, any kind of broad peace machinery, any reasonable part of the Empire to secure American support. Today he will not even promise the return of Hongkong to China .

Three years ago when Russia was fighting back to the wall at Stalingrad, Stalin would have given far-reaching pledges for a broad peace plan. Today he will not even accept Dumbarton Oaks unless Russia has a veto of the council of the United Nations to block any disciplinary action against an aggressor nation.

F. D. R. has to face the fact that both Stalin and Churchill now have most of what they want, and Roosevelt is left, with almost no trump cards, except the humanitarian appeal that the Allies must not abandon the goal of peace for which mankind fought, plus the threat that the American people, if disillusioned, will become isolationist as never before.

—THE BIG 3 AGENDA—

Perhaps the toughest nut Roosevelt has to crack is to secure Stalin's acceptance of the Dumbarton Oaks peace machinery without crippling amendments First, however, let's examine the points on the agenda which should be easier. There are six main items on the Big Three agenda, as follows:

1. War against Japan—this was promised by Stalin at Teheran as soon as Germany was defeated. It was promised in return for the Allied second front in Germany and there is no reason to believe Stalin will not keep this pledge. He has been meticulous in keeping promises once they have been given, and F. D. R. expects no trouble about this.

2. Poland—Roosevelt is proposing a compromise whereby Premier Mikolajczyk, recently resigned from the London-Polish government, will enter the Russian-inspired Lublin government of Poland. The United States and Britain would then recognize the Lublin government. The President is also proposing that Russia withdraw some of its claims to old Poland as a conciliatory gesture to the Poles.

3. The Baltic Provinces—The United States will now recognize Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia as part of Russia. Thus far the United States has recognized them as separate countries, and still have Baltic diplomats in Washington. But as a gesture to Stalin we will now formally recognize these states as Russian.

4. Punishment of war criminals — The Big Three will have no trouble in agreeing on the strongest joint measures to punish the war guilty, including joint Allied courts.

5. Postwar trade with Russia—Roosevelt is proposing a loan or credit of about six billions for Russia to buy a tremendous amount of American goods to restore her war-torn economy.

6. Dumbarton Oaks—Last summer there was one crucial stumbling block in the path of a new machinery for permanent peace—the right of a big nation to sit on the council while the other nations debated as to whether she was an aggressor. Russia insisted on this right. This would give her the power to veto any action to be taken against her as an aggressor.

—DUMBARTON ON ROCKS—

The Dumbarton Oaks conference nearly split to pieces over this point. Finally when pressure was put on the Russians, they threatened to put sixteen members, including all the Soviet's Satellite states, in the United Nations.

This would give the Russians sixteen votes, one for each Soviet republic, just as the British dominions were all represented in the League of Nations.

This is the hardest problem Roosevelt faces. Today Russia is in a position to dominate not only the Balkans, Hungary, Austria, and Czechoslovakia, but also Germany. Stalin was far-sighted enough to organize a committee of 10,000 Germans inside Russia, already trained to take over the new German government. Politically—and also militarily—most of Europe will be dependent up on him. Naturally he doesn't want to be voted an aggressor nation if, for instance, he wants to subdue trouble in Bulgaria or Roumania.

So the diplomats who have sat close-up to the Dumbarton Oaks negotiations think that Roosevelt may have to return from the Big Three talks forced to accept Stalin's veto of who shall be an aggressor.

If that is the case, the President's difficulties in persuading the senate to accept ratification will be mild compared with the present current fight over Henry Wallace. Also the return of the American public toward imperialistic isolation will be sorely tempting.

That is why the future peace of the world hangs so precariously in the hands of the Big Three.

Few boys ever turn out as the neighbors expect, so why worry?

In keeping with their supposed politeness, some Japs on Manila even bowed to the couldn't-be-helped!

PERRY WRITES FISHING STORY

Herring Catches On Lake Superior Is Article In Collier's

"Herring Are Silli," which does not mean that herring are silly, is the title of an interesting article, illustrated in full color, by Clay Perry in the current issue of Collier's. The article describes herring fishing in the Keweenaw peninsula of northern Michigan, but also briefly treats commercial fishing in general by Michigan fishermen.

Perry explains "silli" is the Finnish equivalent of herring and his article describes the hazardous herring operations on Lake Superior. A total of 3,000 Michigan commercial fishermen are yielding 30,000,000 pounds of fish, all varieties, yearly, worth $4,000,000, Perry revealed in his magazine article.

"Keweenaw fishermen are a tough and colorful lot," Perry's article relates. "They are mostly second and third generation Finns who have managed to retain their nationalistic identity, customs and language since their ancestors came to this land years ago to fish, farm and work in the forests and the deep copper mines."

The well known magazine writer also wrote in a few plugs for lake fishing in Lake Superior.

"Deep lake trolling for trout has become a national sport and Keweenaw held the first National Trout Derby in 1941, with 1,200 entries, a colorful two-day fiesta that will be resumed after the war.

"Lake Superior leads all the lakes in big trout. It yielded the first seven of ten prize winners in the Field and Stream contest for 1941 and 1942. The biggest lake trout entered in the 1944 contest, 53 pounds, came from Lake Superior and an even larger one, 54½ pounds, was caught but not entered. Commercial catches of trout in Keweenaw waters have jumped from 45,323 pounds in 1940 to over half a million pounds annually in the past four years.

Manistique News

Wishes He Had Some Of Mother's Fried Chicken

Life on the Philippine Island is most unusual to Sgt. Earl W. Kane who is now stationed on one of those islands and has had opportunity to see the natives resume their routine lives reassured by the fact that the Japs have left, never to come back.

Sgt. Kane

In a letter recently received by his mother, Mrs. Edith Kane, Route 1, Manistique, he writes that the native girls are very pretty and the people generally, are very cordial. He gets a big kick out of watching the natives till their fields with buffalo.

While he has no kick to register concerning army chow, he can't help but hint that some of his mother's fried chicken would be most welcome. He tells how he and six other buddies satisfied their yen for fried chicken by buying five birds from the natives and frying them over an open fire in a pan made out of an end of a gas barrel. "They sure tasted swell," he says.

Edison Sault Co. Is Not For Sale

Sault Ste. Marie — George W. Baldwin, president of the Edison-Sault company said in effect today that the firm's properties in eastern Upper Peninsula are "not for sale" in stating the company's position on a bond company's proposal that the city seek to acquire the properties for municipal operation.

Mr. Baldwin pointed out a plan for dissolution of the American States Utilities corporation through stock distribution has been submitted to the Securities and Exchange Commission for approval; that approval of this plan is expected; and that Edison-Sault's postwar plan, under private ownership, include purchasing all power from the proposed 14,000-W government plant in the Rapids, leading to a reduction in local rates "which probably will be the lowest in the state."

RESTRICT COAL DELIVERY HERE

Forbid Dealers To Serve Customers Who Have 15-Day Supply

Retail coal dealers in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan and Wisconsin today were forbidden to deliver any kind of solid fuel to a consumer who has on hand 15 days or more supply of usable fuels of any kind.

The Solid Fuels Administration announced the limitation was to permit clearing up a large backlog of retail orders, many of them from persons who are entirely without fuel. The order becomes effective immediately and is to continue in effect until further notice.

In Escanaba, retail coal dealers recently requested cooperation of the consumers in ordering coal only in small quantities at this season of the year, and in making their present fuel supply last as long as possible. There is sufficient coal on hand here to last the winter if the consumer cooperates.

The order received by coal docks in Escanaba yesterday reads:

"Every retail dealer, including a commercial lake dock operator, in the state of Wisconsin and in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, is prohibited from delivering any solid fuel which is to be used for space heating, domestic heating of water, or domestic cooking, to any consumer who has on hand a 15-day or more supply of usable fuels of any kind.

"Every consumer in the state of Wisconsin or the Upper Peninsula of Michigan who has on hand a 15-day or more supply of usable fuels of any kind is prohibited from receiving from a retail dealer, including a commercial lake dock operator, any solid fuel which is to be used for space heating, domestic heating of water, or domestic cooking."

"We consider it a good reminder, sir."

This might be an excellent use for some of the barbed wire left over from the beachheads and barricades.

Placed between a man and the War Bonds he's safely tucked away, it would give him pause . . . in case he was tempted to cash in a single Bond.

It would make him stop and think . . .

Stop and think that those Bonds will mean income . . . security . . . perhaps even a good measure of financial independence in the unpredictable postwar world.

Stop and think that every Bond will bring back—not just its purchase price—but $4 for every $3 at maturity.

Stop and think that holding War Bonds is as vital to Victory as buying them . . . and as vital to a secure future for the individual, a secure future for his country.

Put your War Bonds in a safe place. And keep them there . . . as you keep on buying more.

Ten years from now, you'll thank your lucky stars you did.

SLICK ADAPTATIONS—Beau Brummel Styles Set a Trend

BY EPSIE KINARD
NEA Staff Writer

New York—So modern in feeling are the fancy vestments of the 19th century blade— his stock and lace-spilling jabot, collar of exaggerated cut and stiffness, artistried ascot, dandified jacket—that a 1945 designer borrows these styles ideas and gives them to the girls in her spring collection.

Impact of designer Jo Copeland's inspiration came from the previewed film, "A Song to Remember," the romance of Frederic Chopin and of his lady, George Sand, who was as fond of wearing a gentleman's costumes as she was of masquerading under a man's nom de plume. From film costumes of both principals come ideas to add to the style flair of jaunty checked coats, new navy blue suits and background dresses for spring.

An example of what a dandy's oversized collar can do to distinguish a simple one-piece dress is shown in the gray wool frock at the right, which has a white pique gilet, crisp cuffs to match and silver links which repeat the gleam of buttons parading down the front of the pigskin-belted dress.

The Beau Brummel influence on 1945 suits is seen in the two navy blue woolen models pictured. The fitted double-breasted bolero suit shown upper left has a self-buttoned gold faille front set upon a navy blue back. When opened the jacket reveals a pleated white crepe blouse with flouncy fluting released at the neckline.

The fitted bolero of the suit shown at lower right is lined with bold plaid taffeta, a flash of color repeated in the large plaid ascot tie which sets off a weskit-type of white pique blouse. What gives the beret, ensembled with this suit, the airs of a hat is a pleated pin-wheel of the same costume plaid.

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT

At Slippery Rock College in Pennsylvania this year there are only nine men students and every one of them is on the basketball team—which leaves women students the responsibility for cheering the team.

That ought to give the co-eds of Slippery Rock valuable experience. For "cheering the team" is the life-time work of women. In war their main job is to boost morale—which is just another form of cheering the team.

When they go into the business world the women who get along with a masculine boss and men workers are those who applaud, admire and encourage everything the men do. "You certainly have Mr. Smith eating out of your hand" a woman employee tells the man working at the next desk. Such tactics, which keep her popular in the office, are nothing more or less than the applause of a well-trained rooter.

Socially, of course, women are always in the cheering section. They don't dare monopolize the conversation when there are men around. And their greatest social asset isn't the ability to talk intelligently or put over a funny story. The women who have social charm are the ones who know how to listen and when to laugh. That's a form of rooting, too.

Stick By Him

It may be necessary for a woman to be her husband's helpmate, but nothing she ever does to keep the family going brings her as much credit from her husband as her readiness to stick by him through good times and bad, always having enough faith to egg him on with "The breaks have been against you—but just wait, you'll show 'em."

So if the girls who are students at Slippery Rock don't learn anything else during their college careers but how to be confident, successful rooters, they will be well-trained for life. And that goes whether they make a career of business, society or marriage—or a combination of all three.

NEW TRICK GIVES 'OOMPH' TO CROCHETED FASHIONS—

New York—Thanks to a new construction trick, the newest crop of make-it-yourself crocheted hat, bag and belt ensembles have all the oomph and chic of fabously priced custom-made matchmates.

That trick is to make a meshed-in effect as heavy as felt—and as easy to drape—out of cotton thread by carrying four strands all at the same time on your crochet hook. This trick also wins huzzas from busy women because it cuts down considerably on the time it takes to whip up style tricks like those shown above.

Only a few evenings and eight balls of thread for instance, are needed to crochet either one of the two ensembles pictured. So compactly meshed are the four-strand weaves that no millinery wiring is needed for either the beriboned beret pictured left or the chou-trimmed turban shown right. The same heavy-as-felt construction which builds good contours into toppers also gives the bags pictured—envelope at the left and collar bag at the right—their good handling qualities and eliminates the nuisance of having to back these accessories with a lot of extra linings and stiffeners.

Although millinery wire gives a sailor its taunt-brimmed look, which as you can see on the hat shown center is desirable, the new tightly-meshed crochet construction is frequently all that is needed to preserve the shape of softer-brimmed bonnets.

Worry Clinic

With Case Records Of A Psychologist

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE E-283: Gordon H., aged 14, is a high school freshmen.

"I like to play baseball and am fairly good at it," he admitted. "In fact, I was chosen to play on the freshman team last spring.

"But my Dad always tagged along with us at practice. He sat on the sidelines and told us and the coach how we should pitch or bat or field the ball.

He never played baseball himself, but he likes to boss people around. The kids didn't like it, and the coach also got irritated.

"My dad can't take a hint. Finally, I asked him if he wouldn't please stay home, but he told me it was a free country and he'd go with me, anyway.

"As a result, the coach benched me. I knocked a home run and made two singles in the first game we had and drove in three runs in the second game, but Dad queered me with the crowd."

Diagnosis

What is wrong with a man in modern America who is so deficient in social understanding.

Gordon's father wants to feel important. He is so hungry to boss people around that he violates good taste and ruins his son's athletic career by tagging along and telling even the baseball coach how to direct the team.

When a man goes to such extremes in his behavior, we can usually make a shrewd guess that he is compensating for a serious inferiority complex.

But he is compensating subconsciously, so he isn't aware of his absurd behavior.

Signs of Inferiority Complexes

It is very common for a person with an inferiority complex to compensate. Sickly Teddy Roosevelt deliberately followed diet and exercise that made him a rugged picture of health and vitality.

Club-footed Lord Byron became the best swimmer in England, and also landed a place in the Hall of Fame for his famous writings.

Such intelligent compensation is laudable. But a bully is also compensating, though not in a constructive fashion. And Gordon's father is trying to bully people around in order to make himself appear important.

We know, however, that he secretly is afraid people disregard him and tend to treat him as a rubber stamp.

The root of this problem goes right back into his home. Gordon's mother dotes on her son. She is inattentive to her husband.

She has made her husband feel little, unimportant, undesired. She doesn't even dream that she is partly to blame for Gordon's being benched.

Men Are Simple to Diagnose

Men are often very simple to handle successfully if you wives will just use a little psychology.

They want to dominate. They crave to be he-men. The shorter the man or the less athletic, the more he may try to be a dictator in his attempted compensation.

So make him feel big. Compliment him lavishly. Play second fiddle to his ego. This is the "stoop to conquer" technique. It works marvelously.

You can soon have him eating out of your hand, he'll be so tame, and he will be much less caustic and snarlish with the children.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you send for one of his psychological charts.)

COLE ADMITS GUILT, PAYS

Changes Plea In Court; Illegal Fish Come High, He Finds

Wilfred Cole of Kipling, charged with taking perch from trap nets in waters closed to the netting of perch, this week appeared before Justice of Peace O. C. Estenson and changed his plea from not guilty to guildty and was fined $25 and costs of $9.50.

Upon arraignment Cole had pleaded not guilty to the charge and trial in the case was set for yesterday.

Netting of suckers is legal at the head of the bay but this is the only type of netting which is permitted in waters of the Bay north of a line drawn between the point and Squaw Point lighthouse.

Cole has been working with a commercial fisherman who is engaged in obtaining suckers for the eastern trade. The arrest was made by Conservation Officer Allan Tweedy.

JAMES H. COLE WAR CASUALTY

Wounded In Army Jan. 28; Hospitalized In England

S/Sgt. James H. Cole was wounded in combat in Luxembourg on January 28, according to a message from the War Department over the signature of Adjutant General J. A. Ulio received Thursday by the parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Cole, 619 Montana avenue.

Yesterday the parents received a card from the U. S. General hospital to which Sgt. Cole is confined saying that recovery from the wound was normal. They also received a letter from their son the same day telling them that he had been removed to England for hospitalization.

Sgt. Cole has been in service since April 4, 1941 and has had but one furlough.

A portion of his letter to his parents follows:

"Well I guess I'm pretty well settled so I am writing to give you my new address. I'm now in southern England. We came over here from Paris in a plane. The flying weather was good so we had a nice trip. I wish that plane had gone all the way to the states too. It's pretty nice over here. We have beds with sheets again. I didn't have any of those since we left Iceland. It's good to get away from the front during the cold weather. It was plenty chilly up there in Luxembourg.

"We have shows here and a Red Cross. Last night I was over playing bingo. Of course I didn't win anything. We run around here all day in pajamas. Yep, it sure is soft here. I'm already getting tired of laying around all day.

"I'm feeling as well as ever. Of course my lower arm is in a cast which makes it clumsy. It feels OK though."

Servicemen Provide Lions Club Program

Two interesting talks by servicemen featured a regular meeting of the Gladstone Lions club at the Yacht club Thursday evening.

Edward "Fritz" Esler was inducted into the club as a member.

Clem Hupperty, city, and A. L. Dagnais and Merrill Larson of Escanaba were guests at the meeting.

Tweedy Back From Red Cross School

Conservation Officer Allan Tweedy, Rapid River, in company with five other conservation officers of the Upper Peninsula, recently attended an instructors course in Red Cross first aid conducted at Roscommon, Mich.

Improvements Slated For Two County State Parks

Two Schoolcraft county beauty spots will undergo extensive improvement in the course of the next five years as a part of the program of development recently announced by the Michigan Department of Conservation.

Announced in the report explaining the department's five year program of improvements in state parks are improvements to the Indian Lake State Park at Palms-Book.

The improvement program at the Indian Lake Park calls for black top entrance drive; complete parking area, black top surface and build curbs; complete camp ground development; construct toilets, sewage and water systems and supply electricity to campers' sites. Total estimated cost, $45,000.

Palms-Book Park, at the Big Spring calls for a program to remodel present residence and store, add toilets for public and improve living quarters; improve highway from old US-2 to park,; surface parking area and construct curbs; install water and sewage disposal systems. Total estimated cost, $86,500.

This is part of a general program of improvement in state parks and recreational areas throughout Michigan. This includes improving the standards and increasing and augmenting facilities in state parks now in operation. Included in the program are the improvement in the Upper Peninsula of such beauty spots as Baraga Park, Baraga county; Brimley Park, Chippewa county; Fort Wilkins, Keweenaw county; Gogebic Lake Park, Gogebic county; Porcupine Mountains, Ontonagon county; Straits park, Mackinac county; Tahquamenon Falls, Luce county; and J. W. Wells Park, Menominee county.

The State Conservation department, in commenting on this five year program states: "There is considerable advantage in this method of appropriation over that made on a yearly or a semi-yearly basis. With funds for a five year program available, qualified men can be employed who will not be attracted by one-year offer of employment, contracts can be let for an uninterrupted flow of construction at each park, and considerable saving can be affected by the opportunity to allocate work to take advantage of price and employment. The big advantage is getting done at the earliest possible date some things that have long needed doing.

The entire state program, as contemplated in the report, will cost approximately $16,316,000.

TO TRAP SENEY REFUGE BEAVER

Animals May Be Trapped On Supervised Basis

For the first time since its establishment in 1935, the Upper Peninsula open season for the trapping of beaver—April 1 to 15—will include the Seney National Wildlife refuge in Schoolcraft county.

Trappers will be permitted to take a total of 500 beaver, half of the estimated population on the refuge.

The conservation commission, at its regular January meeting, voted to limit each trapper's take on the refuge during the open season to eight animals, the season limit elsewhere in the state. Trappers must have a Michigan license and will be required to divide their take with the U. S. Government on a 50-50 basis.

Trapping operations on the refuge will be supervised by C. S. Johnson of Germfask, the refuge manager, who will designate areas to be trapped and the particular colonies from which beaver may be taken. Local residents with previous trapping experience, will be given preference.

The poinsettia, a native flower of Mexico, was named after Joel Poinsett, of Charleston, S. C.

Eskymos Lose To Iron Mountain; Gladstone Defeats St. Joseph

LANKY CENTER GETS 17 POINTS

Mountaineers Take 32-29 Decision In Hot Battle Here

The Eskymos outplayed and outfought the Iron Mountain high school basketball team last night but they lost to the towering Bob Constantini, 32 to 29, who scored 15 points, six of his seven buckets resulting from rebound tip-in shots under the basket.

The Escanaba team played an aggressive, heads-up battle and were right in the thick of the fight right down to the final horn but they just didn't have the height to block the lanky Constantini under the basket.

The game was the most exciting of the local season and the crowd was in a dither most of the way. Escanaba ran up a 9 to 6 lead at the quarter but dropped behind in the closing minute of the first half, which ended with the Mountaineers setting the pace, 14 to 13.

Starting the third period, the Eskymos broke with a rush and regained the lead, 18 to 17, but it proved to be the last time they were on top of the score as the Mountaineers shortly forged ahead to stay. The count at the three-quarter post was 25 to 22 and although the Eskymos managed to match the visitors point for point in the final period, they were unable to overcome the gap.

The death knell for the Eskymos actually was sounded when Scott fouled out with three and a half minutes of play remaining. Iron Mountain was leading, 30 to 26, at the time and the Eskymos were unable to develop a winning offensive after that. D. Anderson dropped in another field goal to spread the count to 32 to 26. Escanaba added three points in the final minute of play on J. Finn's bucket and Ohman's free throw, but it wasn't enough.

In the preliminary, the Iron Mountain reserves defeated the Escanaba reserves, 20 to 20.

EMERALDS DROP 34-29 DECISION

Manistique Bows To Soo Blue Devils In Hard Fought Battle

Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Manistique Emeralds lost a heart breaking 34 to 29 decision to the Soo Blue Devils here tonight after leading the Lock City team most of the way.

The teams broke even in the first quarter, 6 to 6, but Manistique moved into an 18 to 13 lead at the half way mark. The Blue Devils came back to knot the count 20-all at the three quarter mark in a bitterly fought dogfight.

Leading 30 to 29 in the closing minute of play, Maki of the Soo rang the bell twice with long shots to put the game on ice.

Manistique outscored the Blue Devils from the floor, 12 field goals to 10, but lost three men on fouls, Milavec in the first period and Curley and Pistulka in the third frame. The Blue Devils counted 14 times on charity heaves.

WILDCATS WHIP MICHIGAN, 49-34

Scoring Ace Max Morris Runs Total To 125 For Eight Games

BY FRANK KENESSON

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 9. (AP)—Piling up a 15-point lead early in the second half, Northwestern broke a five-game victory famine to whip Michigan, 49 to 34, tonight in a Big Ten basketball game before 4,000 fans.

Max Morris, Northwestern's Big Ten scoring leader, was limited to one basket in the first half by Michigan's John Mullaney but banged in eight points in the second half to hike his total to 125 for eight games.

Frank Wright, 6-3 navy "V" guard for the Wildcats, played brilliant rebound ball to lead all scorers with 12 points. Michigan's forward Bob Geahan, who entered the game second to Morris in the individual scoring race, led the Wolverines with 10 points.

Michigan, failing to connect with its shots in the first half, fell behind 9-6 in the first seven minutes of play and Northwestern then sank nine straight points for an 18-6 lead. At halftime the Wildcats led 26-18.

After guard Walt Kell connected on a long shot for Michigan to open the second half Northwestern again made nine straight points for a 35-20 margin.

The Wolverines rallied to outscore Northwestern 12-4 over a nine-minute span a short time later, trimming the lead to 40-34 with four minutes to play. For the third time the Wildcats counted nine straight points to wind it up with successive baskets by Morris, Ben Schadler, Wright and Duane Sickles and Wright's free throw.

Northwestern's victory was its first in the Big Ten since Jan. 12, when the Wildcats downed Minnesota 52 to 33. It gave the Evanston five a season record of three wins and five losses so far in the conference.

Michigan, closing its home season tonight, now has lost six of 10 Big Ten games.

Michigan plays at Wisconsin and Northwestern entertains Ohio State Saturday.

BUCKEYES TAKE LEAD IN BIG 10

Madison, Wis., Feb. 9 (AP)—Ohio State took possession of first place in the Western Conference basketball race tonight by trouncing Wisconsin, 63 to 34.

The victory pushed the Buckeyes past the Iowa Hawkeyes with whom they had been tied for the top with five wins against one defeat.

Breaking up the Badgers' efforts to "freeze" the ball, Ohio State pumped in long shots and used its superior height to earn a 14-5 lead. Turning on the speed, the Buckeyes took a commanding 37-15 margin at halftime.

With the issue no longer in doubt, Ohio State played its reserves through much of the second half. Paced by Forward Rod Caudill, who potted five baskets, the Buckeye subs showed fire and dash against a Wisconsin team that clearly had an off night.

Caudill, subbing for Don Grate, took point honors for the winners with 10 tallies. Ray Patterson led Wisconsin with 13.

Women Bowlers Will Compete In Singles Tourney

Ishpeming, Feb. 7.—Women bowlers of Escanaba and Gladstone and other communities in the Delta district are invited to enter the first women's singles sweepstakes tournament, to be held February 17 and 18 on the Sportland lanes, Ishpeming. Deadline for entries is midnight, Monday, February 12.

The deal is: singles only, four games across eight alleys, total score counting. Tournament scratch will be 150, with 50 per cent of the difference between individual average and scratch being the entires handicap. Entry fee is $2 and the management guarantees 25 per cent of the entry fund will constitute first prize. With squad prizes and other awards one out of every six bowlers will take a slice of tournament melon.

Already more than 50 entries have been posted, with Marinette and Manistique coming through with five each and Marquette 20. The balance is from Negaunee and Ishpeming.

Escanaba has been active in bowling and the management here is hopeful the sweepstakes can be a peninsula event, with representation from leading communities.

TIGHT BATTLE LOST BY ROCK

Boos from the crowd lost a basketball game for Rock high school last night and the decision went to Gwinn, 28 and 26. The regular four periods of play ended with the score knotted, 24-all. At the end of the first overtime period, with the count 26 to 26, Lund of Rock was fouled and as the whistle blew he connected for a free throw which would have won the game. Referee Guckey ruled, however, that the crowd was booing too lustily, voided the point, and ordered the shot repeated. Lund missed on his second try, and the game went to Gwinn when Filizetti looped a basket to give Gwinn the first marker and the verdict.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

Recreational facilities that will be needed in Escanaba in the post-war period provided a subject for interesting discussion at the adult education forum Thursday night. It is a subject that deserves thought now. Unfortunately, too few people are thinking about recreational requirements although recreation will certainly be one of the nation's main interests in the postwar period. It is impossible to do all of the necessary planning now because we still are undetermined about the effects the war will have on postwar recreation.

* * *

Nevertheless, some planning can and should be done now. Of particular need is the formation of a city recreation board, an agency to gather and correlate information, to determine public opinion and to adopt broad objectives for the city's recreational program. The development of a recreational board would prove of inestimable value to the director of recreation who, up to now, has been forced to carry the ball pretty much alone. It would also serve as a more effective control of recreation in Escanaba.

* * *

One man, no matter how brilliant he may be or how well he knows his job, can not do the planning on recreation to the general satisfaction of the public to the degree that a recreational board can. For one thing, the matter of personalities is important. That's where the board is particularly desirable, because there is not one personality represented, but several, a cross section of interests. In this manner, a board is able to reach out farther, to get a broader viewpoint, than an individual alone.

* * *

Certainly one of the really important assets of a recreation board would be its ability to develop and encourage wider participation in established recreational facilities. This, of course, is just a matter of simple arithmetic. A group of men obviously can make more contacts with the public than can a director alone. It is natural to expect a half dozen salesmen to sell more goods than one alone. Under such a program, the director, naturally, would be the full time, salaried leader to direct the recreational activities and to hire his assistants.

* * *

The need for a city recreational board was particularly evidenced Thursday night, when the adult education forum discussed the postwar problem of recreation. There were only about 25 persons present, including the half dozen panel members. This lack of interest proved quite conclusively that recreation must be pulled by the bootstraps. It cannot be left to drift. Aggressive leadership must be provided—and soon. Unfortunately not even a single councilman was present, nor a member of the board of education, despite the fact that recreation in Escanaba must necessarily require the combined assistance of both of these political bodies.

NO GAMBLING, BOWLERS TOLD

Steps Taken By ABC To Keep Alley Sport Free Of Rackets

Milwaukee, Feb. 9 (AP)—The American Bowling Congress, aware of efforts of gamblers to move in on other sports since the close of race tracks, took steps today to protect its sport.

The Congress, which governs all organized bowling, issued a special order on gambling, signed by John Canelli, chairman of its legal committee.

The order bluntly told some 950,000 bowlers and 4,000 alley proprietors who are members of the Congress that it would countenance no pools, hand books, pari-mutuel betting on matches or similar schemes of gambling in the sport.

It added that any proprietor found guilty of permitting such gambling would face loss of alley certification and withdrawal of league sanctions and that any ABC member who participated in such schemes might be expelled for life from organized bowling.

"We long have been aware of the undermining effects of pools hand books and pari-mutuel betting," E. H. Baumgarten, secretary of the ABC declared, "and we have kept bowling clean of such practices for many years."

Baumgarten said that many years ago an alley proprietor attempted to set up a pari-mutuel betting window at a tournament. The ABC stepped in quickly, stopped it and soon thereafter enacted legislation that has kept all similar practices or schemes out of the sport.

The order sent out today, he added, warns the operators of their responsibility, gives them full information of the ABC laws governing gambling and reiterates the Congress' intention of enforcing the legislation.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Feb. 9 (AP)—Grains dropped sharply in the futures markets today, rye at times breaking more than two cents, as commission house liquidation disclosed an absence of support. Short covering during the final hour erased part of the losses but the recovery was far from complete.

At one time rye was off more than two cents to a new low since mid-December. Wheat slipped as much as 1 7-8 cents, and the remainder of the list lost more than a penny.

At the finish wheat was 5-8 to 1 cent lower than yesterday's close, May $1.61 to $1.60 7-8. Corn was off 5-8 to 7-8, May $1.11¼. Oats were ¼ to 5-8 lower, May 66 3-8. Rye was off 3-4 to 1 1-8, May $1.11 to $1.11 1-8. Barley was 7-8 to 1½ lower, May $1.08 3-4.

Primary receipts of wheat were 513,000 bushels compared with 2,029,000 bushels a year ago. The trade in corn was mixed and the market affected by prices in other pits.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

RETREAT KEPT UP BY STOCKS

New York, Feb. 9 (AP)—Financial markets generally continued their retreat today as the persistently good war news, combined with other circumstances, inspired extension of the light selling which got under way Thursday.

Losses ran to 2 or more points after a slightly uneven opening but extreme setbacks were reduced in most cases. Distillers, specialties, and scattered industrials managed to finish ahead. Dealings were relatively slack, transfers approximating 1,180,000 shares compared with 1,530,000 the day before.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .4 of a point at 59.6, its second decline since January 30.

At 1944-45 highs with gains of 1 to more than 2 points were Schenley, Flintkote, in response to an expansion of property holdings, and Distillers Corp. Modest improvement was shown for Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse, Philip Morris, J. C. Penney, and Douglas Aircraft.

SELLING HITS RAILS

New York, Feb. 9 (AP)—Selling pressure overtook a substantial number of rails in today's bond market, resulting in losses of fractions to around 2 points. The general run of industrials and utilities were less disturbed, but minor declines predominated.

For the fourth time this week the foreign bonds in the Associated Press averages made a new high at 69.9. Since the Allied armies began pushing the Germans around in the latest offensives, a much better demand has appeared for bonds of numerous European debtors, including Greece, Poland, Denmark, Jugoslavia and Norway. In addition, the recently listed new series Brazilians have attracted strong buying.

Domestic loans on the offside included those of the St. Louis-San Francisco, Cotton Belt, Seaboard, Philadelphia & Reading Coal, Northern Pacific, New Haven, New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Katy, Louisville Gas & Electric, International Great Northern, Consolidated Edison, Baltimore & Ohio and St. Paul.

Resistant spots included Delaware & Hudson 4s, at a new high at 105½, Detroit Edison 4s at 108, Duquesne Light 3⅛s at 106½ and New York Edison 3⅛s at 106 7-8. Governments were about steady.

Sales of all bonds totaled $7,450,000, compared with $10,060,000 on Thursday.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

New York, Feb. 9 (AP)—Closing foreign exchange rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Canadian dollar in New York open market 9½ per cent discount, or 90.50 U. S. cents, down .13½ of a cent.

Europe: Great Britain official, buying $4.02, selling $4.04.

Latin America: Argentina free 24.85, down .02 of a cent; Brazil free 5.25n; Mexico 20.65n.,

REMEMBERING THE RECORD

The people of the United States, and perhaps of other nations as well, are in a penitent mood during these anxious days of total war. Having fought a war to "Make the World Safe for Democracy" and to "end all war," the people of our nation now find themselves embroiled in another World War in which the nation's casualties are numbering, so we are told, about three thousand men a day. Added to this tremendous toll of casualties, war time restrictions lie heavy upon an otherwise free people. And so the people become introspective and are in the mood to examine themselves to discover the cause of this present catastrophe which has befallen mankind.

This penitent mood is being reflected in the comments of newspaper columnist, radio commentators and politicians. Most of these are singing a doleful chorus maintaining that the United States is to blame for this war because it did not become a party to the League of Nations. This note was sounded in the presidential campaign, it is being sounded nearly everyday by someone who believes that it is the duty of the United States to solve all of the problems which now trouble the nations of the world. Because it is being said "again, and again and again," that the failure of the United States to become a partner to the League of Nations, brought on this present conflict, it is well for us to re-examine the history of the years immediately following upon the first World War.

It is conceded by most people that no person was ever more idealistic in his thinking, than was President Woodrow Wilson. No man has ever sought more earnestly for a solution of the problems which confront the family of nations of this world. Wilson hoped to establish a world order in which the rights of minorities would be protected, and in which the principles of the Sermon on the Mount would be placed into practical application. Mr. Clemenceau of France said that Wilson, "Talked like Jesus Christ," and to Clemenceau, Lloyd George and others "Talking like Jesus Christ," seemed rather ridiculous and inadequate. Mr. H. G. Wells, who is a brilliant historian, points out that "Wilson's Fourteen Points had an immense reception through out the world, and that "Could they have been made the basis of a world settlement in 1919, they would forthwith have opened a new and more hopeful era in human affairs."

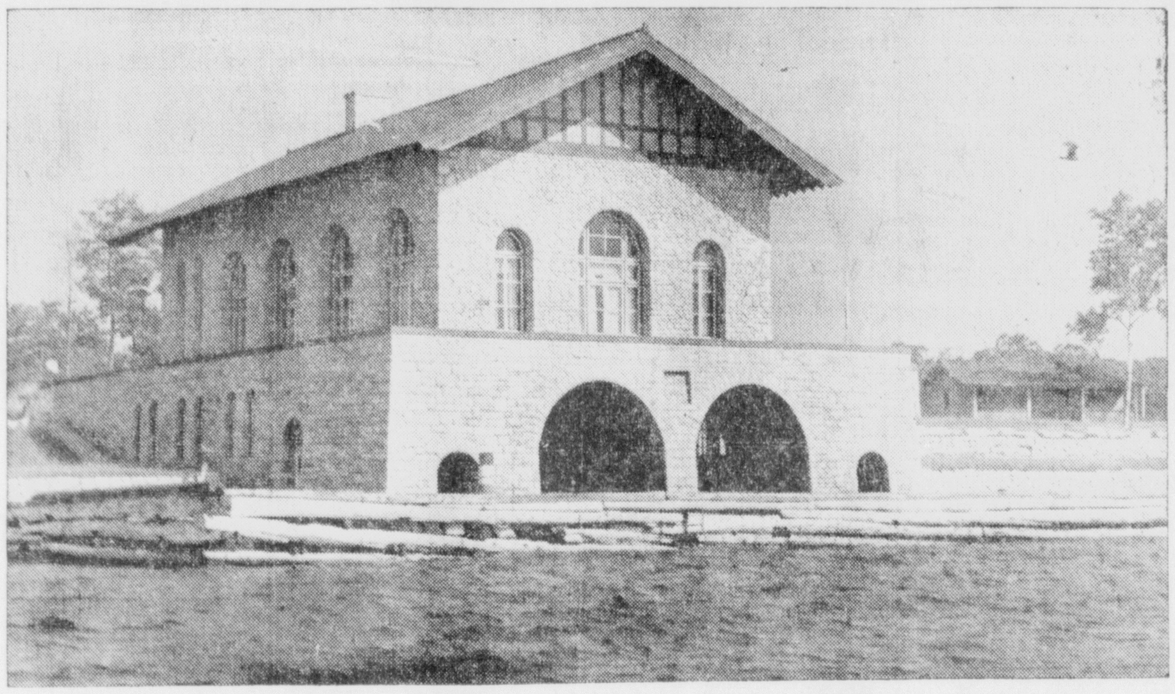
However Wilson's "Fourteen Points" were not appreciated nor received by the leaders at Versailles. Mr. Wells reports that "from the whispering darkness and fireside disputes of that council, "Wilson" emerged at last with his Fourteen Points pitifully torn and disheveled, but with a little pulling infant of a League of Nations which might die or which might live and grow, no one could tell." "This homunculus in a bottle which it was hoped might become at last Man ruling the earth, this League of Nations as it was embodied in the Covenant of April 28 1919 was not a league of peoples at all; it was, the world rediscovered, a league of "states dominions or colonies."

Wilson's Fourteen Points and Wilson's idea of a League of Nations were destroyed by the masters of intrigue and power politics who represented the European nations at Versailles. It was these people, who destroyed the hope of a better world and a united mankind. The thought of the European nations was admirably expressed in December 1919 in a meeting in London at which Major-General Sir Louis Jackson at the Royal United Service Institution said, "that England was merely on the eve of the most extensive modifications of the art of war known to history. It behooves us therefore, (that is Britain) to get on with armaments and to keep ahead. It is necessary to develop new arms—the nation which did so would have a great advantage in the next war. "Another man Major General Stone said he hoped this lecture "May be the beginning not of trusting in the League of Nations, but in our own right hand and our stretched out arm."

The United States did not ratify the League of Nations, because it had become disillusioned and suspicious of the European Nations, whose statesmen had destroyed the hope of unity and peace held out by President Wilson and the U. S. Let us keep the record straight, and also do some straight thinking in the present crisis. It will do us as a nation no good to condemn our actions of twenty years ago, actions which were inspired by a lack of faith in the men who had destroyed Wilson's Fourteen Points, and then created a League of Nations to serve their own selfish interests. Let us put the blame where it rightfully belongs, not on the people of the United States, but upon the warmongers and warlords of Europe. It was these people who twenty five years ago destroyed the hope of unity and peace. And it will be these same people, who will destroy the hope of peace and unity in the present crisis. The U. S. wants peace, and unity in the world.

Karl J. Hammar.

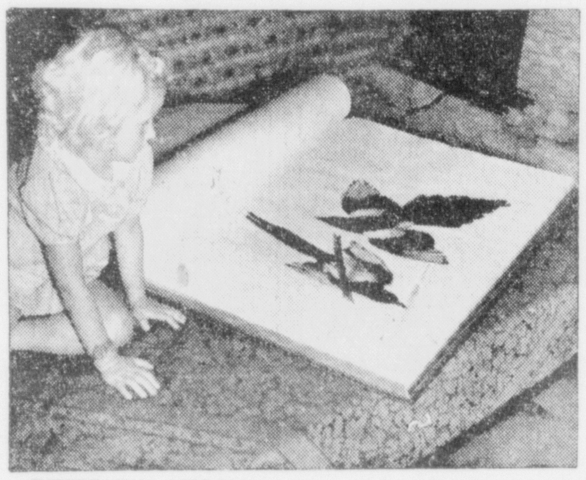
Electrical Wizard Had Summer Home On Rock Island



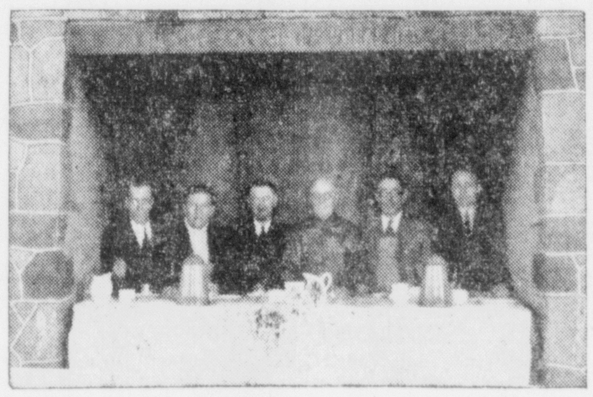
THORDARSON'S ISLAND RETREAT—This is the huge boathouse-library constructed on Rock Island, summer home of C. H. Thordarson, Chicago industrialist, who died Tuesday night at the age of seventy-eight. Thordarson traveled widely over this country and Europe to acquire title to every foot of land on mile-square Rock island, a short distance from Washington island in Lake Michigan.

About twenty years ago, he started construction work on the island, erecting a large lodge for the entertainment of friends and company employes, a stone cottage, greenhouse, dormitory and the boathouse shown above. It is estimated that Thordarson spent all together about one half million dollars on the property.

About twenty masons worked three years in building the boathouse, which was completed in 1928. The foundations were laid on a stone ledge, in 12 feet of water. The ceiling of the house is 20 feet high, and the length of the two wells is sufficient to accommodate a 70-foot boat each. The library is in the upper portion of the boathouse.



INTERESTING LIBRARY — Above is Julia Ann Thordarson, four-year-old granddaughter of the late Mr. Thordarson, looking at one of the 10 original volumes of Birds of America, drawn by John James Audubon, noted American naturalist. This great work contains 435 life-sized colored plates of birds. The huge library has hundreds of books on nature, science, Icelandic literature and other subjects. An Icelandic carver, Sigurd Einarsen of Chicago, carved old legends on the expensive desks, tables, chairs and other furniture in the library.



LARGE FIREPLACE—While the boathouse, a summer home in true Nordic style was also being erected, with the living room one of the most unusual in America. At one end of this spacious room was built what is claimed to be the world's largest fireplace. Of heavy steel structure, faced with stone, it burns logs eight feet long and is seven feet high. Mr. Thordarson once held a dinner for five friends and himself in the fireplace. Above, the noted inventor-industrialist, who founded the Thordarson Electric company, now a division of Burgess Battery company, is seated fourth from the left. Thordarson won distinction in the electrical world with his patents on electric transformer improvements.

With the Dixie Division on Morotai (Special Release)—Beginning with Christmas Day, the "holiday season" meant for nine Michigan infantrymen an 11-day march with full field equipment over the jagged peaks and through the dense jungle of Morotai's wild interior.

So rugged was the uncharted terrain over which the infantry company moved in quest of Japs that in one day's climbing from sun-up to sun-down it made only 350 yards as measured on the map. Several men came in with towels around their feet instead of shoes, and the skin came off with the sox of one infantryman. When the company began the return trip on New Year's Day it was necessary for them to call for artillery fire so they could determine their location. A cub plane hovered overhead to show them the way out.

"It was the worst foot march we've ever been through," veteran infantrymen declared.

Michigan men in the column, which at times was two miles long, included Pfc. Charles L. Stewart, rifleman, son of Mrs. Irene Stewart, 824 Dakota avenue, Gladstone. Stewart entered the army shortly after his graduation from Gladstone high school in 1942.
